Raise your hand if you've ever shelled out money to try a new natural beauty product—hesitant to let go of an old favorite, but knowing that you need to upgrade your beauty arsenal to more natural and healthy products—only to be totally disappointed when you use it for the first time?

Then, you're left with two choices: you either have to throw the product away, or let it sit in your drawer, convincing yourself that maybe you'll try it again one day (that day which, as we know, never comes). #wishfulthinking

Not only is this money down the drain, but it's also frustrating to waste your time and energy on products that just don't work well.

NATURAL BEAUTY PRODUCTS: HAIR

SHAMPOO

- Beautycounter's Volumizing Shampoo: It took me the longest time to find a natural shampoo I actually liked. Finally, this was the first one that not only smelled great but left my hair feeling clean and healthy. It actually suds up/lathers and rinses out completely!
- True Botanicals Nourishing Shampoo: A newer find that also lathers and cleans without stripping. Antioxidant-packed for all hair types, including color-treated.
- Phillip Adam Apple Cider Vinegar Shampoo: ACV isn't just good for your gut—it also balances the pH level of your scalp, keeps it healthy over time and makes your hair squeaky clean and shiny. I can't get enough of the scent of this natural shampoo that actually lathers!
- The Seaweed Bath Co. Balancing Eucalyptus and Peppermint Argan Shampoo: Made with organic, sustainably hand-harvested Maine seaweed as base, this shampoo is a great natural detoxer while retaining moisture. It reminds me of Aveda's classic scent.
- Mineral Fusion's Dry Shampoo \(Medium to Dark\): I love how it not only sops up any excess oil, but also doesn't leave a white, powdery residue in my dark hair, letting me go 3-5 days in between wet washes.
- Hair Dance 100% Natural & Organic Dry Shampoo Volume Powder: On days when I need some extra grease control, I use this awesome dry shampoo made with rice starch and oatmeal. It's a bit more difficult to rub into my dark hair, but once it's absorbed it's like my hair has been freshly washed!

CONDITIONER

- Beautycounter Smoothing Conditioner: This smoothing formula really helps calm frizz, while detangling your strands. I love how it leaves my locks feeling hydrated, sleek and glossy!
- True Botanicals Nourishing Conditioner: This antioxidant-rich formula repairs sun damage, restores vibrancy and leaves hair soft and silky but without weighing it down.
- Phillip Adam Apple Cider Vinegar Conditioner: Apple cider vinegar naturally balances the pH level of your scalp, keeping it healthy over time and makes your hair squeaky clean and shiny. No more greasy residue left behind!
- Andalou Naturals Lavender & Biotin Full Volume: Andalou Naturals was the first beauty brand to achieve Non-GMO Project Verified status. They use a unique 'Fruit Stem Cell Science®' in every product, which is essentially a super antioxidant defense system that works wonders.
